12 Dimensions of Wellness

An expanded proprietary model adding four internal self-mastery dimensions to the traditional eight-dimension framework.

■ Core wellness dimensions

■ Distinct Character additions ♦

01 PHYSICAL

Movement, sleep, nutrition, preventive care, and bodily functioning. Affects mood, focus, and stress tolerance across all other dimensions.

02 EMOTIONAL

Coping with stress, naming feelings, and building satisfying relationships. The basis of inner stability and self-awareness.

03 SOCIAL

Connection, belonging, communication, and support systems. Relationships are one of the strongest predictors of resilience.

04 INTELLECTUAL

Curiosity, learning, creativity, and continued skill development. Growth that extends beyond achievement and external milestones.

05 OCCUPATIONAL

Work that is meaningful, manageable, and aligned with your values. Purpose without depletion. Connects performance to full life context.

06 FINANCIAL

Managing money with enough stability and confidence to reduce stress. Affects health, decisions, sleep, and relationships.

07 ENVIRONMENTAL

The spaces you live and work in, including safety, order, cleanliness, and sustainability. Surroundings affect the nervous system directly.

08 SPIRITUAL

Meaning, values, inner guidance, and connection to something larger than yourself. Does not need to be religious. Purpose and integrity are its forms.

09 NERVOUS SYSTEM ♦

Regulation, stress capacity, and breath as a biological tool. Safety in the body is the prerequisite to every other dimension.

♦ Distinct Character additions: the internal architecture of self-mastery ♦

10 IDENTITY ♦

Self-concept, values congruence, and how you understand yourself over time. A stable identity anchors every decision you make.

11 BOUNDARIES ♦

Relational and energetic limits that protect your capacity. Boundaries are design decisions, not walls.

12 SELF-EFFICACY ♦

Agency, inner authority, and confidence in your ability to act. The belief that you can change your own conditions.

Wellness is not equal balance across all twelve dimensions.

It is a dynamic process of making intentional choices that fit your actual life, energy, and season.

How the dimensions connect

PHYSICAL AFFECTS EVERYTHING

Poor sleep cascades into emotional regulation, work performance, food choices, and financial

FINANCIAL AFFECTS THE BODY

Money stress disrupts sleep, strains relationships, degrades health behaviors, and narrows cognitive

NERVOUS SYSTEM AFFECTS ACCESS

A dysregulated body cannot access identity clarity, enforce boundaries, or sustain self-efficacy.
